MONEY TAKEN FROM A RAILWAY

Mr. Willis, called President Dole, that the United States expected the preferred annexation of the islands on the ground that the government was only formed by act until the islands should be annexed. The law books on limits of the term of the term until a thing occurs, terminates, is not only by the occurrence of a thus, unless it is impossible that it should occur. This would raise a legal quibble as to whether the decision of President Cleveland to reject annexation made it impossible that annexation over should occur.

Those qualified to speak for President Cleveland and Secretary Grinnell will have been willing to speak at any time, expressed great confidence that the administration had always been restored to her through the last, but Wednesday.

The equally confident assertions of those best acquainted with the character and record of the provisional government that she, certainly, had not been restored without the use of force, made no difference apparently in the confidence of those who claim that she had been restored.

Minister Willis' instructions were to instruct the revolution and overthrown the queen. Minister Willis, it is said, was instructed to insist upon this, because he believed that the revolution would not have occurred if it had not been for the assistance and co-operation of the government through the late Minister Stevens.

The minister, according to his notes, was instructed to make the restoration of Hawaiian conditional, but that the money which he had been given to him in Honolulu for purposes of aggression upon the government, which Mr. Thurston represented.

No information can be secured on the subject, but it is believed that Minister Willis' instructions did not in any way affect the course of the revolution and that marines were probably landed in Honolulu on Wednesday if any obstructions had been offered by the provisional government.

The rather cordial instructions to Thurston by Secretary Gresham, on Tuesday, to land marines in Honolulu, were intended to insure that the president would be able to land marines in Honolulu for the purpose of aggression upon the government, which Mr. Thurston represented.

No information can be secured on the subject, but it is believed that Minister Willis' instructions did not in any way affect the course of the revolution and that marines were probably landed in Honolulu on Wednesday if any obstructions had been offered by the provisional government.

The instructions, it is thought, requested the minister to first call upon the queen and tell her the president believed that she had done wrong had been done her and after having done so, namely, to demand the intention to again place her in control of the government. She was also to be informed that it was the desire of the president that she should place those who had been instured in the revolution and sustain herself in authority without the assistance of the United States.

From the cipher dispatch it is believed that the state department has been informed that these conditions are satisfactory to the queen and had been accepted by her at the time the note was sealed.

To President Dole it is understood that Minister Willis was instructed to say that the president felt it was his duty to decide the matter as if it were his own to do so, and after having done so, referred to himself and restore the queen, and in sustaining the queen, the president hoped to have the hearty cooperation of the members of the Dole administration which he had been trying to commend for what it had done to maintain peace in the islands since it had been in existence.

It is believed right that it commanded the queen by this government the United States would assume the same policy of noninterference in affairs of other powers.

It is thought that the queen was ready to comply with the suggestions of the members of the provisional government to aid and become friends no doubt believe that she could more easily sustain herself by having the assistance of those who were prominent in the revolution. The members of the provisional government would be willing if it be believed, to take up positions because it would give them just the power they would wish in case they desired to take part in another revolution, which is possible if there is no provision made to sustain the queen.

It is upon the yet unpublished report of Mr. Blount that the administration depends for a complete vindication of its attitude. It is anticipated that there will be warm debates upon the subject in Congress which will be decided by the vote of the Senate on which the letter of Mr. Solley was based will then have been made public, and while it is anticipated that the statements made will be denied, it is claimed that they will be sustained by the following evidence that the people who are disposed to look at the matter fairly will be compelled to acknowledge that the administration could do nothing else but restore the queen.

It is believed, but that the administration feels that it is the defense and that there is a tendency especially among Republicans and among many Democrats to criticize its action.

The claim that time will show beyond a shadow of a doubt that the administration has made a mistake is not made with much persistence in view of our country as if with the intention of creating the impression that there is a great deal in reserve for vindication purposes.

There is no denying the fact that there are a great many men who are partisans of President Cleveland who feel that a mistake has been made and who can not reconcile themselves to the restoration of the queen and especially attacking her by force of arms. There are some who are members of the Dole party who say that it is all right to restore the queen before the revolution, if it was brought about by the influence and assistance of the United States government or through the intervention of Minister Stevens, but after that the Hawaiian should be allowed to settle their affairs in their own way.

In answer to the assertions made that the president and secretary of state are destroying a republic and setting up a monarchy, it is claimed that there never existed a worse despotism than that of the provisional government of Hawaii. An officer of the department said yesterday that "it was a despotism of five persons, and these people were told under the old law that they were to be ruled."

He also asserted that there would be a great change in the sentiment of the people when all the facts were known.

Persons in the state department conclude absolutely uncompromised to the new plan of the Hawaiian government, and the members of the association of published assertions that have been advanced as speculations, and persisted in, can, however, be had. Thus it is proved that contention of the government will be that provisional government of Hawaii came into existence for its own ends, when United States Ministerial.

THE EX-CZARPULLED

SOME QUESTIONS THAT STUMPED THE MON. THOMAS B. REED.

He Wasn't Prepared to Discuss the Tariff Except From the Manufacturers' Point of View—A High Tariff Speech That Ended Ingloriously.

When Thomas B. Reed spoke for McKinley recently in Cincinnati he found that 6,000 copies of the following question had been distributed in the audience. He was forced to notice some of them, but gave up the job after a few vain attempts. The reason will be apparent after reading some of the questions:

Mr. McKinley says that "every ton of pig iron imported into this country disposes a ton that would have been made by American labor." If this theory is true, how is it that history shows that increased importation not only does not displace American labor, but that it increases the demand for it, and instead of decreasing the production of American pig iron it largely increased it? Vide United States statistical abstract, also report of Mr. Swank—a Republican protectionist—secretary of Iron and Steel association. The same results have always followed any and all increase of importation of all other products.

We are always prosperous when we import largely, and business depressed when importation is checked?

It is not because large imports demand large exports to balance trade?

Is it not true that commerce consists in bringing things from a place where they are relatively cheap to a place where they are relatively dear?

If, as Mr. McKinley now asserts, "the foreigner pays the tax," why did he strike off the sugar-tax, which yielded $23,853,873?

Why did he give a bounty of 2 cents a pound, paid by American taxpayers, to the Louisiana sugar planter as a substitute for the foreign paid tax on imported sugar?

If duties on imports are paid by foreigners, why does this government give to the American importer 99 per cent of this duty upon such quantities of these imported goods as are exported?

Is it not that more money has been paid out by our government as rebates on some things to exporters in some years than was received by the government in duties on the same?

If the tariff is not a tax, why do protectionists say that placing sugar upon it will not injure the people of a great burden?

Why did Mr. McKinley say when a Democratic congress proposed to put cotton ties—iron binding—upon the free list: "that was done in the interests of the southern planter?"

Did he not thereby admit that the tax upon cotton ties was a burden upon the planter?

Why do protectionists put a high duty on wool to make it dear and on plait to make it cheap?

If it costs the American people an annual tax of $15,000,000 to enable our manufacturers to make 1 per cent of the tin plate we use, how much will we have to pay before we produce all we consume?

If protectionists assert it is a sign of national prosperity to sell more to the world, how much statecraft is involved in policy which cultivates trade with Brazil and Cuba, where we bought last year $144,044,500 and sold $134,534, and extracts trade with Canada and England, where we bought last year $235,157,707 and sold $485,257,753?

If the object and effect of a high tariff is to raise the rate of wages, why have there been more than 400 strikes and reductions of wages in the protected industries since the adoption of the McKinley tariff?

If, as protectionists assert, "free trade" has always worked disastrously, why is England more prosperous than any other European country, and why did Francis DeWitt, secretary of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, say in 1856, 10 years after the passage of the "free trade" tariff? "The result exhibits a rapid and substantial growth in our industrial resources which is unequalled to be found in any other part of the world."

Why did all the Massachusetts members of congress in 1857 vote to make the low tariff of 1846 lower still?

If a tariff means low wages, why does the Republican consul in the free trade colony of New South Wales declare that "labor is better treated and better paid here than anywhere else on the earth?"

Why were duties taken off from sugar, because they were taxes upon the manufacturer, and left on steel rails, because they are taxes upon the foreigner?

With men on the free list, do you expect to make laborers believe that they are protected by a tariff on what they consume?

Why is it that wages are lowest and employment less steady in industries protected by the tariff?

If we need a tariff to protect us against the "pauper labor of Europe," ought not that tariff to be highest upon the products imported from the lowest wage countries, Spain, Austria and Prussia?

It is not true that high wages mean low cost of production?

Not especially the following quotation:

Will the people of any foreign country give us their products?

If they will not give them to us, can we pay in any other way than by giving them products of our own industry?

This being the case, does it not follow that the more goods we import the more we must export to pay up or to balance trade?

When there is an increased demand for goods, does this not make an increased demand for laborers to produce more goods?

And with an increased demand for laborers, do not wages rise?

With an increase in wages, is not the purchasing ability of laborers increased, and do they not buy and consume more?

With an increased consumption of goods, do not manufacturers, merchants and all others profit thereby, and is there not an additional demand for more laborers to produce more goods?

"Ah," said Byron, "just like poor Bill—never in time!"—London Million.

PROSPERITY NOT CALAMITY.

A Protectionist Authority States the Case of the Woolen Industry.

It is a mistake to attribute the paralysis which fell upon us in June and from which the wool and woolen interests are still suffering to an anticipated change in the tariff at that time. To assert this would be taking a superficial and ignorant view, or either would be sacrificing honor for partisanship.

There are plenty of instances which prove that such was not the case. Up to the month of June nobody had anything to complain of. The manufacturer, the commission agent, the jobber, the clothier and all were enjoying a good trade and were planning for autumn and winter business, realizing full well that a tariff revision in the direction of lower duties had been definitely ordered by the people at the last election. They expected that December would be productive of a revised tariff bill from the committee to the Senate platform. But they felt sure that in all probability a year at least would elapse before it became operative, and that during that time they would be afforded ample opportunity to shape themselves to the new conditions.

In the meantime the condition of the woolen interests are not dissimilar to the plight of a person who, having suffered a severe blow, is easily disturbed, irritated and frightened by unfavorable features arising in other directions.

In the hands of the ways and means committee is a bill which it is unsafe to assume is first of all a revenue measure, one which places generally on the free and raw materials used in our manufacture, and numbered among which will be wool. There appears, moreover, not much doubt that a tariff bill embodying substantially the provisions of the bill of the House of representatives will be passed by the end of next session.

The decadence of the steamboat business along the Mississippi River, occasioned by the rapid development of the railway system, has naturally resulted in the decline of many river towns which in their day were centers of commercial importance. But inland towns had more than a corresponding growth, and the channels of commerce are perpetually shifting to suit themselves. The freight cars have largely supplanted the river barge and the canal boat; but the latter may have restoration through the aid of the trolley, and invention may yet crowd with traffic all our internal water courses as they were crowded during the good old steam-boating days.

Attorney General Poe, of Maryland, has filed in the United States Supreme Court the answers of Maryland and to the cross bill of West Virginia regarding the boundary line between the two States. The case is decided in Maryland's favor she will acquire a tract of land containing 500,000 acres. In 1746 a stone called the Fairfax stone was planted, supposedly at the source of the Potowmack river, to mark the line between Maryland and that part of Virginia, now known as West Virginia. Later surveys show that the source of the stream was not at the Fairfax stone, but at the head of the south branch of the Patowmack. This is Maryland's claim, which West Virginia resists. Maryland also claims the whole of the Patowmack river, alleging the boundary line to be on the south bank.

The campaign for honest money, which culminated in the defeat of paper flatism educated the country and taught it the importance of sound currency for itself. The second campaign to meet and defeat flatism after it had shifted its base of operation from paper to silver has just closed, and has taught the nation that it cannot separate itself from the world without bearing all the burden of separation itself; that the adherence of the greatest nations to the gold standard is not selfishness or prejudice, but self-preservation.

Miss Yettie Weaver, of 703 Greenlawn avenue, is improving rapidly from a severe attack of malarial fever.

Chief Stockton and policeman Paton were at Upper Sandusky yesterday as witnesses in a criminal case being tried there.

The funeral services of Mrs. Jonathan McPherson were held from the Perry Chapel at ten o'clock this morning. The remains were interred in the Perry cemetery.

The funeral services of the two-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Tatton, were held from the residence, on Summit street, to-day. The remains were interred in the old cemetery.

The funeral services of Mrs. Catherine P. Hackett were held from the residence, No. 208 East McKibben street, at two o'clock this afternoon. The remains were interred in Woodlawn cemetery.

At Lafayette, yesterday morning, the roof of Bradigan's saloon took fire and nothing except its prompt discovery and a hard fight saved the building and those adjoining. The roof was badly damaged. A spark from the chimney on the roof, the timbers of which were old, caused the fire.

Fall Into a Fire.

Wm. Shift, aged about 42 years, while engaged in burning brush on his father's farm, near Anna, south of here on the C. & H. & D. fell in a fainting spell and the fire surrounded him. He was seriously burned, and died Wednesday evening.

LAMP EXPLODED.

Occupants of a House Awakened by Fire in the Building.

About three o'clock this morning, Mrs. E. Clark, who runs a boarding house at 735 South Main street, was awakened, almost suffocated with smoke, and discovered that the sitting room, which adjoins her bedroom, was in flames. The occupants of the house were awakened in haste and, for a few minutes, dozens of hands commenced removing the burning furniture from the rooms and after a hard fight the fire was forced under control and finally extinguished. Some one sent in an alarm to the fire department but the fire was out when they arrived, and it was unnecessary to throw any water.

The fire is supposed to have originated from the explosion of a hanging lamp in the room. The curtains between the latter room and the parlor, together with all the other curtains in the two rooms were entirely consumed. The piano, all the other furniture and the carpets in both rooms were badly damaged, but fortunately are covered by insurance.

A RAVING MANIAC.

Salem Reid, of Shawnee Township, Goss Insane Over Trouble.

This morning Probate Judge Lindemann was in Shawnee township holding an inquest of lunacy on Salem Reid, aged about forty years. Reid, some time ago sold his farm for $4,500, and it is said a relative of his induced him to buy eighty acres of land from him, paying $80 an acre for it. He paid the $8,000 cash but could not meet the amounts as they became due and was refused a deed until he paid the full amount. Brooding over the trouble, he became raving mad. Last night he had to be overpowering and tied. He was brought to the city in that condition to-day, and though bound, it required several men to hold him. He was taken to the Toledo asylum this afternoon.

SLIPPED AND FELL

To His Death—C. & E. Brakeman Killed.

Brakeman John F. Stratton, of the C. & E., was run over and fatally injured by a freight train on that road yesterday afternoon.

Stratton was a new man on the road and was making a trip as head brakeman of west-bound freight No. 31, in charge of Conductor Dow, and which passed through Lima about noon. As the train was leaving Robo, Ind., a small station near Decatur, Stratton, in climbing to the top of a box car, slipped and fell beneath the train, which passed over his right leg, between the knee and thigh, mangling the limb in a horrible manner.

The unfortunate man was taken to Decatur, where the limb was amputated by a couple of physicians. The operation was too much for Stratton's constitution after losing so much blood and he only lived a few hours, dying about midnight last night.

The deceased was a married man and his wife was visiting some where in the southern part of this State when she received the sad news of her husband's fatal accident. She passed through this city this morning and accompanied the remains of her husband from Decatur to Huntington on train No. 1.

DIED IN TEXAS.

N. N. Dixon, Formerly of this City, Died Last Saturday

A letter was received from Waco, Texas, by E. P. Wilkins, containing the information of the health of N. N. Dixon, at that place last Saturday from brain fever.

Mr. Dixon was a former resident of this city and clerk for J. S. Smith, the grocer, while his wife conducted a boarding house in the rear of the Harper block. They removed to Waco about a year ago.

The funeral services of Mrs. Jonathan McPherson were held from the Perry Chapel at ten o'clock this morning. The remains were interred in the Perry cemetery.

At Lafayette, yesterday morning, the roof of Bradigan's saloon took fire and nothing except its prompt discovery and a hard fight saved the building and those adjoining. The roof was badly damaged. A spark from the chimney on the roof, the timbers of which were old, caused the fire.

Fall Into a Fire.

Wm. Shift, aged about 42 years, while engaged in burning brush on his father's farm, near Anna, south of here on the C. & H. & D. fell in a fainting spell and the fire surrounded him. He was seriously burned, and died Wednesday evening.

Given Twenty Days.

This morning Mayor McComb sentenced Sanders, the colored fellow who stole a pair of pantaloons from Adam Faupel, his employer, to twenty days in the work house and fined him $10 and costs. He will be unable to pay and was locked up again.

GLOVER & WINTERS

Wholesale and Retail Millinery.

Ladies of Lima, are you posted?

Do you know the styles? If you do, come and see what we can offer you.

In Parisian, New York, and don't you forget Lima styles. This is a bold assertion. We would not do it without confidence.

If we are mistaken you can be the judge. Trimmed hats in all styles and millinery at prices—well we will not mention. Look around for yourself. A special job on hand, 113 and 115 East High street.
